DAMASCUS HIGH CLASS TO HEAR DR. E. E. LEWIS

Commencement Exercises To Be Held Tuesday, Night, May 26

SPECIAL MUSIC PLANNED ALSO

Demonstrations Arranged by Classes; Honor Students Named

DAMASCUS, May 5.—Dr. E. E. Lewis of the Ohio department of education will speak at the 26th annual commencement exercises of Damascus High school the night of Tuesday, May 26.

Arrangements for the graduation and other scholastic events have been completed by the faculty and student body. It was announced today.

The presentation of the graduating class, following Lewis' talk, will be made by Supr. C. G. Long, L. M. Burton, president of the board of education, will present the diploma.

Innocent will be given by Rev. A. R. Anderson, pastor of the Methodist church. Rev. Amos Henry, pastor of the Friends' church, will pronounce benediction.

Class Demonstrations
Class demonstrations will be held in connection with the ceremonies, including one in home economics by Miss Daisy Stackhouse, instructor, one in manual training by E. E. Wagstaff, instructor; another in French by Miss Dorothy Patton, instructor, and stenography and typing by Miss Adrienne Spahn, instructor.

The girls' chorus will sing "Song of May" and the boys' chorus, "Home Land." Music also will be provided by the High school orchestra.

Honor students, in their order, are: Kathryn Mountz, Matilda Merrill, Bernice Barnett, Lee Mercer, Helen Lora.

Class officers are: President, Lee Mercer; vice president, Dorothy Sanor; secretary, Ellen Carpenter; and treasurer, Helen Lora.

The commencement announcements and name cards have been received by the graduating class and will be mailed soon.

The place and time of the Junior-Senior trip has not been definitely decided.

The Senior play, "The Closed Door," will be given May 22 under the direction of Miss Dorothy Patton.

Speaks Tonight

George Myers, secretary of state, is expected as the chief speaker at a Democratic rally tonight in the Elks home here. The event will open with dinner at 6:30, followed by a program of talks. Jack Rafferty, president of the Young Democratic club, will preside.

Others who are expected to take part in the program are Haywood Thompson of Cleveland, president of the State Association of Young Democratic Clubs and associate of Newton Baker; Dennis Dunlavey of Toledo, representative of Governor Martin L. Davey, and John Nolan of Steubenville, chairman of the district Democratic clubs.

BORAH SPEAKS AT LIVERPOOL

Says He Plans to Help in Settling Questions At Convention

EAST LIVERPOOL, May 5.—U. S. Senator William E. Borah told an audience last night that he planned to "help settle a number of questions at the Cleveland convention and it won't be necessary for anyone to bolt" the Republican party.

Borah's campaign for Ohio delegates to the convention carried him to Zanesville today. The primary is next Tuesday. The "favorite son" candidate of the state Republican organization is Robert A. Taft, of Cincinnati.

Questions Other Side
"They say I'm getting ready to bolt if I am not nominated," Borah said last night. "I wonder what they are getting ready to do in case I am nominated."

"There are only two people in this campaign who have talked about bolting. Former Governor Smith said something about taking a walk," a former Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio said he would "take a walk" if I am nominated. We shall miss him but there are enough left without him.

"I am going to settle a number of questions at the Cleveland convention and it won't be necessary for anyone to bolt."

"The outcome of this contest depends on the number of uncontrolled Republican voters who participate in the Republican primary."

"The votes which Walter Brown and Ed Schorr control will be cast for the candidates for delegate whom they seek to control."

EIGHT, INSTEAD OF SEVEN UNITS, TO SHARE FUNDS

Community Band Added To List of Participating Groups

BUDGET GROUP IS APPOINTED

Individual Allotments To Be Determined By Leaders

Salem's 1936 Community chest appeal will be made Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 18, 19 and 20.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the city's annual welfare drive today announced the dates following a series of preliminary meetings.

Following the custom of former years, the initial meeting of the workers will be held Monday night, May 18, when final instructions will be issued by campaign leaders.

Eight, instead of the customary seven organizations, will participate in the fund distribution this year.

The addition is the Community band, a non-profit organization devoted chiefly to the development of musical talent among young people, but providing, as well, an outlet for musical expression among persons of all ages.

The other participating groups are: City hospital, Red Cross, Memorial building, Salvation Army, Quaker City band, Home for Aged Women and the Boy Scouts.

Campaign leaders have begun the task of setting up individual budgets for the various participating organizations. This task has been placed in the hands of a committee including L. P. Metzger, F. R. Pow, Harry Young, Ralph W. Hawley and Andrew MacLeod.

Future Bike Champs May Be In Group At School Building

Maybe they're future six-day bicycle riders and maybe they're not—

But nevertheless the students at Fourth Street Junior High school have caught the fever—the fever that gripped their forefathers in earlier days when they steamed down the cobbled streets atop one of those high wheeled velocipedes.

Girle Push Pedals, Too
The pupils at Fourth Street school, girls included, have taken their new bicycles out onto the streets now with the advent of warmer weather. Daily they ride to and from school.

But there aren't just 10 or 25 of them—there are over a hundred of them.

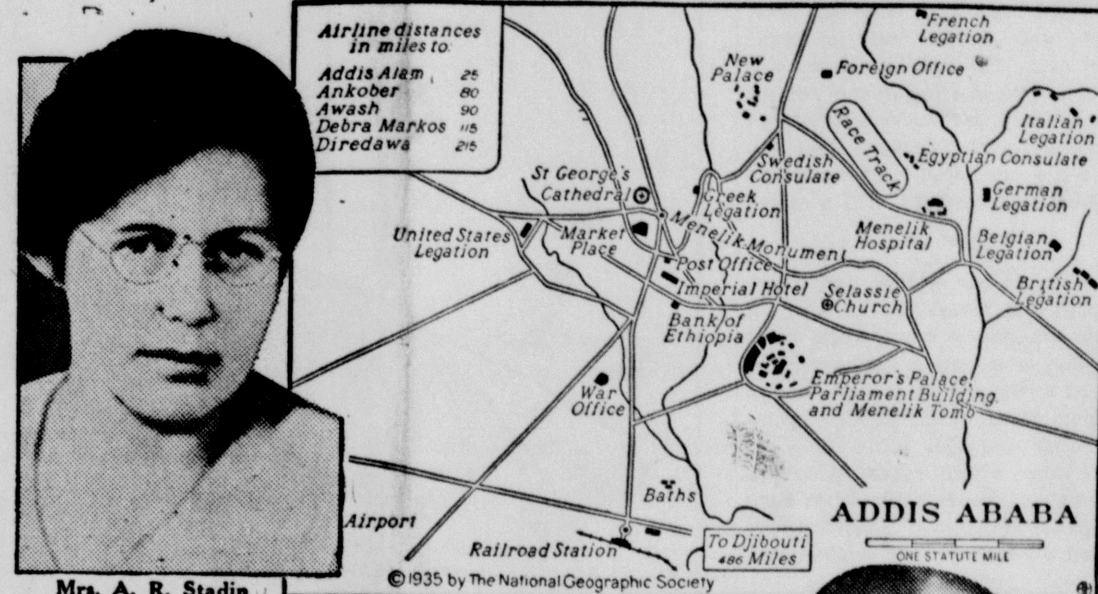

So many, in fact, that the board of education and Supt. E. S. Kerr decided a new bicycle parking lot was needed. The lumber was assembled and the frame-work parking lot was placed at the east side of the Fourth Street school.

Supt. Kerr made this move because he thought that to remove the student riders and their bikes to the east side of the school from the front would eliminate a traffic hazard on Fourth st.

And when the pupils leave school at noon or after the dismissal of classes in the afternoon, the scene resembles the start of a bonafide bike marathon.

Continuing Music week activities in the schools, Fourth Street school today presented a musical program at the school with pupils of grades one to six taking part. The Junior High school glee club, directed by Walter Regal, gave several selections.

Chaos Reigns in Abandoned Ethiopian Capital

Chaos and confusion reigned in Addis Ababa, capital of Ethiopia, as rioters ran wild throughout the city after it had been evacuated by Emperor Haile Selassie because of the impending downfall of the city. One American woman, Mrs. A. R. Stadin, wife of a doctor attached to the Seventh Day Adventist mission, was killed by a stray bullet. Despite the looting and rioting Cornelius Van H. Engert, American minister to Ethiopia, held his post at the legation, reinforced by armed guards.

UNION JOURNAL LAUDS MULLINS

Praises Relationship Of Management and Workers

The Mullins Manufacturing Corp., today received highly laudatory comment in the Official Union Journal not only for the relationship between management and employees but for the part the plant has played as a whole in the development and progress of the city.

The Official Union Journal is published quarterly by the Ohio State Building Trades council of the American Federation of Labor. The Journal says:

"As the Mullins Manufacturing Corp., goes, so goes Salem, and the return recently of this large manufacturing concern to a dividend basis in respect to its preferred stock, was greeted with hearty favor by the entire city, including 1,500 or more Mullins employees who realize that their interests had been given first consideration by the management throughout the entire depression."

"Payment of the dividend is sensibly interpreted by those on the payroll as reflecting increased business success and forecasting a continuation of profitable full-time employment, which was the rule here during the greater part of 1935."

"Importance to Salem of the Mullins Manufacturing Corp., was indicated in the first paragraph above. It is the city's principal industry and has been responsible, more than any other agency, for the progress that has been recorded by the community within the last 20 years."

"A general feeling of good will exists toward the management, there being a clean-cut recognition of the fact that the enterprise has been conducted on a very high-minded plane from its very beginning."

"Jobs at the big Mullins plant are valued very highly by Salem workers. Everybody is desirous of working for a company which possesses the resources and courage to safeguard the interest of its employees during the depression as it does the Mullins management."

"The company is a world leader in the manufacture of washing machine tubs, wringers and automotive parts."

April's Fire Calls Low, Chief Reveals

A new low record in the number of fires in the city was reported for April by Chief Vincent Malloy. Firemen answered only six calls last month.

In March, however, firemen were called 15 different times. Forty-one fires have occurred in the city since Jan. 1, Malloy's records revealed today.

G. O. P. SPONSORS MEETING HERE

Congress Candidates To Speak At Memorial Building Rally

Congressional candidates will be the principal speakers at a meeting sponsored by the Young Republican club at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday in the Memorial building.

Officers of the club announced today that plans for the meeting have been completed, invitations having been sent to all candidates. Outstanding issues of the campaign will be discussed.

Former State Senator Earl Lewis of St. Clairsville and Rev. Edgar Cochran of Steubenville addressed a meeting of the Malvern Young Republican club last night, appearing on the same program, and both denouncing policies of the Roosevelt administration.

Lewis took issue with the national administration on its crop curtailment program. He pointed out that the American farmer was compelled to reduce crop production. Demand subsequently for wheat and other products became acute and, as a result, it was necessary to import foodstuffs from foreign countries, foods which the American farmer was not permitted to raise.

He advocated a protective high tariff to really protect American farms and industries and also urged the establishment of the quota plan, following that adopted for the regulation of the flow of immigrants, as a solution to the foreign trade problem.

Rev. Cochran likewise assailed Roosevelt policies, pointing to the rapidly growing public debt, which will be left to future generations to meet, as one of the chief follies of the administration.

Mother's Day Rites At Trinity Church

Holy Trinity English Lutheran Sunday school cabinet, meeting last evening at the church, discussed plans for a Mother's day program in Sunday school next Sunday. An effort will be made to have all mothers and cradle roll children present. Special recognition is planned for the mother with the most children present.

The morning church service will include a sermon on Mother's day by the pastor, Rev. G. D. Keisler.

School Board Hires Teachers; Two New Instructors Named

Five Married Since Year Ago Are Not Retained; B. G. Ludwig, Formerly of East Liverpool, and Loren Early, East Palestine, On Staff

INCREASE IN SALARIES VOTED

Pay Is Brought Up to 95 Per Cent of 1931-32 Level; Ira C. Hoopes Is Appointed To Janitor Post At High School

Teachers for Salem Public schools for the 1936-37 term were rehired by the board of education at a meeting Monday in the High school and were given a wage increase, bringing their salaries to 95 per cent of normal.

Five teachers who married last year were not rehired by the board. They are: Pauline Fernangle French, Helen Smith Hole, Mary Lanpher Harris, Velda Long Carter and Evelyn Cherry Early.

Two new appointments to the High school faculty were made by the board, leaving three other teachers yet to be employed.

The new appointees are B. G. Ludwig of East Liverpool, now supervisor of emergency schools in Columbiana county, and Loren Early of East Palestine, who at present is an instructor in the High school there. Ludwig was former High school principal at East Liverpool.

Ludwig, a native of Marietta, graduated from Marietta college, while Early is a Geneva college graduate. Both men starred in athletics in High school and college. Early is especially skilled in basketball, tennis and track.

The increase in salaries, the board explained, brings the pay for teachers to the point where it is just five per cent below the normal level of the 1931-32 year.

Janitor Is Named
From a list of three men, certified by the civil service commission, the board selected Ira C. Hoopes to fill a vacancy on the janitor's staff. His salary was set at $103.50, effective July 1.

In regard to putting into effect the school board's policy of cumulative sick leave for teachers, previously considered the board adopted the following program:

1—Allow without loss of salary, 10 school days per year for personal illness or illness and death in the immediate family.

2—Allow the unused portion of each year's allowance for sick leave to cumulate to the teachers' credit against future illness until a maximum of 50 school days, including the current school year, has been reached.

3—Require a physician's certificate to be filed with a teacher's application to participate in the benefits of cumulative sick leave.

4—Put the program of cumulative sick leave into effect as of Sept. 10, 1935.

Teachers' List
The teachers rehired at last night's board meeting include the following:

High School
Wilbur J. Springer, Ethel Beardmore, Claribel Bickel, Chester Brautigam, Herbert Brown, Ray Clarke, Frederick Cope, Ella Smith Cox, Hazel Douglas, E. A. Engelhart.

THE YEAR OF THE DROUTH

The possibility that 1936 may become, in legend, "the year of the drouth" still has not penetrated the consciousness of the eastern part of the United States. The possibility is real, nevertheless. By the end of May experts will know whether or not the year's rainfall shortage is going to be calamitous or merely unfortunate.

Dust storms, which have become so common they no longer get attention outside the affected areas, mean that the moisture deficiency which blighted so many states in 1934 still is No. 1 factor in western agriculture. If it rains, everything will be all right.

On the far side of the Mississippi and particularly southward in the "dust bowl" region, the ground is caked and dry. From Texas, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska come apprehensive reports. Calamity is not certain, but in the opinion of experts it is at least a 50 per cent possibility. If a drouth materializes, it will be a matter of national concern, of course. Neither its direct nor indirect effects can be limited to one region.

A vast deal of useless worrying is done about things which never happen. Perhaps there will be no drouth in 1936. But perhaps there will be no European war, no inflation and no more old fashioned winters, either. As long as worrying is going to be done, the possibility of a serious drouth in 1936 is worth attention.

SHARP TURN AHEAD

Reading that runoff elections in France last Sunday resulted in sweeping gains by the Communist party, apprehensive Americans will be able to see in their imaginations many dreadful things happening to the French in the very near future.

Several uncertainties interfere with this prospect. For one thing, it is impossible to know at this distance what France's Communist party is and what it stands for. That is not strange, in view of the difficulty encountered in defining America's own parties.

For another thing, France has many parties—so many they can do nothing without forming coalitions. It is axiomatic that leftist coalitions, being composed of men with divergent ideas, nearly always spend more energy fighting within themselves than they can find to spend on their fight with the opposition. The Communist party itself holds less than 90 seats in the chamber of deputies.

The French themselves, apparently, are shuddering at the pink complexion of the election results. But even that is not very convincing. It is difficult to believe France is facing the possibility of real communism; liberalism, despite the strongly colored warnings of reactionaries in many nations, is not communism. Worse things could happen to France than a period of liberal reform—fascism, for instance.

It may not be possible to prove that France is not preparing to swing sharply to the left, but where there are so many political parties it isn't likely one of them, which happens to call itself "communist," will be able to make sudden or sensational headway. "Sharp turn ahead" is the sign of France's political road, but it still is a good distance ahead.

O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK, May 5.—The American colony, representing the richest phase of Parisian life, continues to be depleted. Not a handful remains. Scarcely any of the social and luncheon clubs of Yankee membership carry on. The Paris Herald's society chatter deals mostly with South Americans.

What has happened to Paris so far as Americans are concerned has happened to Monte Carlo, Le Toquet and the entire sweep of the French Riviera. And the shops, restaurants and hotels that depended so largely upon patronage from the states have had to close or winnow a different clientele.

In the same fashion the American art colony in the Montparnasse area has also evaporated. The only fixtures are the American newspaper correspondents and, of course, that lively old time sports chronicler, the incredible Sparrow Robertson.

Paris, with its usual optimistic effervescence, shrugs lightly and declares it's only the depression. Boom times and Paris will be over-run again. But those who know say Americans are hep to other delightful places and it will take Paris the hussy, years to recapture the old fervor.

However, Anna Gould and her withered Prince still cling to the marbled pink palace on the edge of the Bois. He totters about the garden in a shoulder cape and she knits. They have never been a part of the American colony, but rather truckled to the Royalist crowd. Prince de Sagan was once one of the flaming young bloods of the boulevards. He liked to wine and dine the stage beauties and was the first Parisian dandy to encircle a huge diamond finger ring around a four-in-hand.

Diamonds for men, I am told, were in their highest upswing during the Ed Stokes and Jubilee Jim Fiske era. Then a gentleman could sport a fair sized sparkler without being classed a vulgarian. There was a period, too, when it seemed all right for Nat Goodwin, Owen Wister and Bob Davis to wear diamonds.

Then the corner saloon keeper made it his badge of opulence and gamblers and crooks copied them.

One of the finest homes in the Paris Bois is owned by Pierre Cartier, the New York jeweler. But there's a legend he stays at a hotel on his visits to Paris now. As the story goes, he returned there after several years' absence, looking forward to being home again. His butler, after greeting him, inquired how long he was to remain. His valet, while dressing, asked him the same thing, and so did several other servants. It was not the sort of welcome he expected, and somehow he completely lost a taste for what had long been a pleasant home.

Then there was the "mourning suite" at the old Waldorf, consisting of six rooms with three baths. In it passed away the beloved wife of a retired manufacturer. The couple had lived there since the hotel opened, but when she was gone he could no longer linger in the environment. But until the hotel was torn down he maintained the apartment and nothing was changed. Each year at the anniversary of her death and at the hour she expired he went there and sat by the bedside for a brief spell, just as he did when he lost her. Keeping rendezvous with a sacred memory!

Bill Hamilton has become one of New York's perennial birds of passage and always on the wing. A retired banker in his 40's, his converted stable home in East 19th street has long been a rendezvous for people of the stage and screen and the literati. He has acquired that so-seldom knack of entertaining by inviting people worth while and then letting them severely alone. This formula always clicks. While his base is New York, he circulates as familiarly in Paris and London and holds a state position in Luxembourg, where he is considered the most popular of all Americans.

A Ring Lardner enthusiast in Enid, Oklahoma, sends me a copy of a lyrical autograph the late author wrote in one of his early books. It read:

All my life I want to roam—
Around God's country Oklahoma
Settling down at last in Enid
Am I spoofing?—No! I mean it.

Arthur J. Burks, pontiff of the pulps, was recently permitted to sit in the electric chair at Sing Sing so he might turn out a gasper for a magazine. Before he sat down, a prison guard advised him not to be so jocular about his adventure. He explained that Police Lieutenant Becker once on a social visit flopped down in the "hot spot" with a joke. Just a year later his sentence of death was executed in the same chair. Burke unfurled himself pronto.

I asked a haberdasher about a neckwear style I like—the stock. He has but a few customers for them. All of the Long Island horse set wear them with their riding get-ups. Fulton Oursler and Grace Perkins, married writing folk, strike me as having the best time of any pair, living jointly by their pen. Overnight they may decide, say, Australia would be dandy fun and next morning they go up the gang-plank and away.

THE STARS SAY

For Wednesday, May 6.

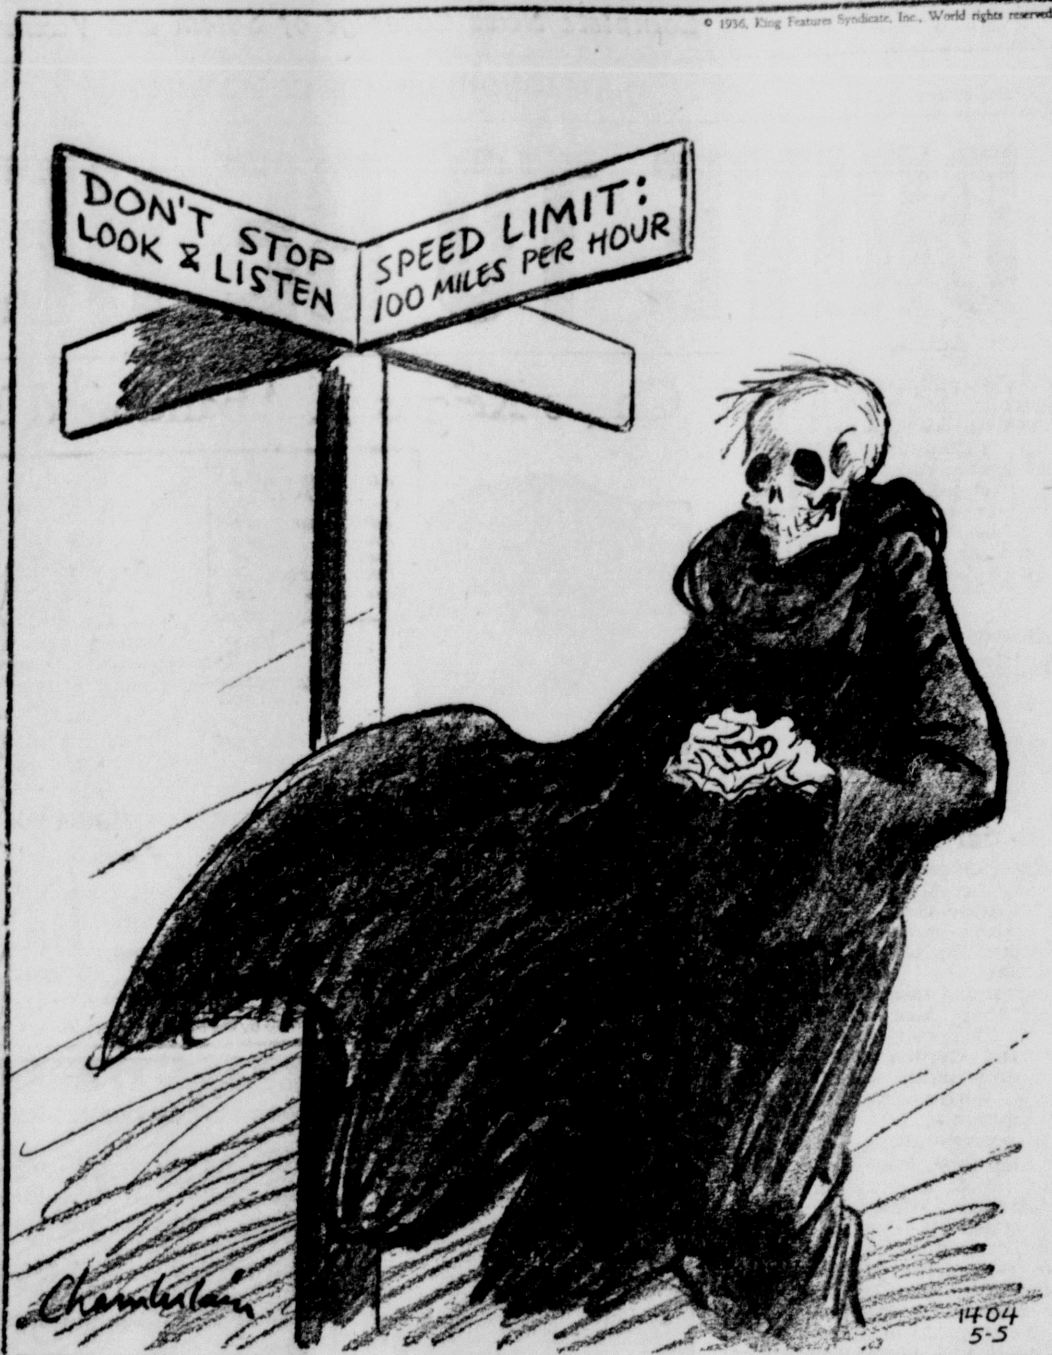

Important planetary operations, both by lunar and solar direction, make of this an eventful and progressive day. This may occur as part of the breaking up of long stagnant and crystallized conditions, making way for initiative and success through industry, application and sound judgment. Elders and employers are contributory to this advancement, which should mean accumulated funds or gain by lands, tenancies, mining or agriculture. Secret bodies and corporations also assist by co-operation.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which there will be a breaking away from old congestions and long-standing obstacles, making way for a decisive progress in the affairs, with stability of the fortunes and accumulations through savings, lands, tenancies, industry, agriculture or mining. Practical plans will succeed, gaining the support of employers, elders or secret bodies. Undercover agreements or understandings may be necessary to success.

A child born on this day may be practical, constructive, methodical and hard working, gaining the endorsement of elders and employers.

SCARLET FEVER

SCARLET FEVER, also called "scarlatina," is a greatly feared disease. This is no wonder because when once a child is ill with scarlet fever it is impossible to know what may be the outcome. Fortunately, serious complications do not occur in every case.

The disease was first accurately described in 1675 by that well-known English physician, Sydenham. Although it was recognized as extremely contagious, it was observed that many did not contract it after exposure.

This escape from the infection can be explained in two ways: First, it is possible that at times the agent of infection is less active than at other times. Second, it is possible that some persons develop an "immunity" or resistance to the disease.

Germ Not Known

On the other hand, some are extremely susceptible to scarlet fever. In that event, it is found sometimes that a given family may be easy victims of the ailment. A careful study of statistical records shows that in many instances every child in a large family becomes infected with scarlet fever. In certain families, too, the disease seems to be more severe than in others.

While more research has been conducted as to this disease than any other of the infectious diseases, it has not been possible as yet positively to identify the germ which causes it. Some scientists believe the germ is so small that it cannot be seen through the microscope. Since the "streptococcus" germ appears in most cases of scarlet fever, some students of the subject regard this as the responsible organism. But the problem is as yet unsolved.

It is wise for every mother to be familiar with the early symptoms of the infectious diseases like scarlet fever. She should bear in mind that as a rule the victim complains of a sore throat, fever, upset stomach and a characteristic rash.

The rash usually appears within twenty-four hours. It is first seen on the neck and upper part of the chest, and gradually spreads to other parts of the body. It is bright red in color, lasting from three to ten days, when it gradually fades, and after that there is peeling of the skin, the surface coming off in scales, flakes and even large pieces.

It is best to consult with the doctor as soon as the child presents any symptoms or signs that arouse a suspicion of scarlet fever. He will decide what the trouble really is and outline the treatment. The doctor will instruct you in the measures necessary to prevent the complications which may be more serious than the disease itself.

Above all, it is important to recognize the disease as early as possible. To do so will lessen the dangers of the disease to the young sufferer and also prevent its spread to others.

NEW DEAL INCREASES FARM IMPORTS FROM CANADA 10 FOLD

THE AMERICAN FARMER seems shocked at what he sees coming over the Canadian border. Do you blame him?

Here are a few of the increases in Canadian imports for January of this year over January 1935, which the New Deal Reciprocal Trade agreement has caused:

Wool, 22 fold; pork, 17 fold; cheese, 12 fold; potatoes, 11 fold; poultry, 10 fold; cattle, 8 fold; beef, 6 fold; and horses, 6 fold. The average increase in the imports just listed has been 10 to 1 over January a year ago, thus depriving the American farmer of these sales.

This flooding of the American market with Canadian farm products cannot be balanced by "soil conservation" Government checks or other artificial methods.

"THERE'S MURDER IN THE AIR"

by ROY CHANSLOR

SYNOPSIS

Beautiful Ruth Tyler, blind daughter of former District Attorney Daniel Tyler, is psychic and foretells murders, but is powerless to reveal enough information so that the tragedies can be averted. These manifestations occur while Ruth, a talented musician, plays her violin—and always at night. The girl becomes terror-stricken and suddenly this strange power grips her. Her father enlists the aid of Dr. Jan Karase, noted psychiatrist, but as Karase is working on another case, he sends his young assistant, Nat Benson, to study the girl. Nat is introduced to Ruth as the son of her father's close chum, in the city on a visit. One night, when Ruth has a spell, Nat prescribes Tyler from trying to soothe her, with the result her vision is keener than ever and she is able to reveal the name of the person marked for death. This time it is Paul Y. Gordon, an international banker. Nat telephones Gordon, warning him his life is in danger. Next morning, Nat Tyler and Ruth, enroute to keep an appointment with Gordon, come upon Doris Gordon trying to get her car started. Nat offers her a lift. Gordon is skeptical of the psychic powers and does not take the warning seriously. He claims he knows no one who would want to kill him. Tyler is exasperated and the trio leave. Checking up on Gordon, Nat learns there is no record of him past beyond 1917 when he became a member of the firm of Street & Company. In that year a member of the company, David Grahame, and his wife lost their lives on the "Lusitania" and Gordon adopted their daughter, Doris. An autobiographical sketch states that his second marriage was to Carlotta Montez in Madrid in 1916. Beyond that Gordon's life is sketchy. The autobiography also reports that he married Eleanor Cummings in Chicago in 1904, yet the Chicago Bureau of Vital Statistics has no record of the birth of his two children. Everything now depends on Ruth. Three nights later, she gets the warning that the assassin is about to strike. Nat calls Gordon and Ruth screams. "Lookout! Someone is about to strike!" Gordon flings himself sideways in bed and simultaneously there is a spurt of flame and a pistol shot. He comes to with his family around him. In the group are his wife, Carlotta, his children Helene, David and Doris; Johnson, the servant; and Nelson, a guard. In dodging the shot, Gordon struck his head on the table, forcing Tyler to come over the next morning. When all but David leave the room, the boy asks his father, "Do you think it was he?" "I don't know," Gordon replies.

Nat slowed the car as if to stop when they approached the gate, but the man in the small lodge quickly swung it open and waved them through. The big car climbed rapidly up the long winding driveway to the house which now gleamed in the morning sun. The same burly man met them at the side entrance. He jumped forward quickly, opened the door and helped Ruth from the car. Then he hurried to the house phone and announced them. The door opened immediately, and he showed them inside.

They found Gordon in dressing-gown, a bandage about his head, seated in the big chair at the window. Another man lounged by his side. Gordon greeted them warmly and introduced his son David.

Nat and Tyler looked at the younger man with interest. He was a handsome fellow, about the same height as his father, of slighter build, but there was little if any facial resemblance between the two men. Tyler indicated the bandage on Gordon's head.

"You got quite a blow," he remarked. "It's nothing serious," Gordon said. Then turning to Ruth: "Thanks to you, young woman."

Ruth nodded slightly but said nothing. Gordon coughed, cleared his throat.

"I—I owe you all a sincere apology," he said awkwardly. "More of an apology than you realize, perhaps. I—well, to be frank, I was pretty skeptical about you. I—I might say even suspicious. I—checked up on you—even had you watched."

"So we gathered," Nat said with a grin. "Of course I discovered that you were all—all—" he went on, hesitating.

"All right?" Nat asked, smiling. "Exactly," said Gordon. "You will forgive me?"

"Quite," said Tyler briskly. "Perfectly natural. Now, suppose you tell us just what happened."

"Right," said Gordon heartily, relieved. He began a straightforward recital of the events of the night. Ruth closed her eyes, seemed to be absorbing every word. Nat watched Gordon's face, and his son's. Odd, the lack of resemblance, he thought. Curious, too, that while the son's expression changed as the elder man gave the details of his harrowing experience, the father's was strangely masklike.

Gordon stopped, glanced from Tyler, to Nat, to Ruth.

"And that's the story," he concluded. "My men went over every inch of the premises—and found no one."

Ruth nodded slowly but said nothing. Nat and Tyler went to the window and looked down, curiously.

"Yes," Tyler agreed. "A fairly agile person could have gained access to that ledge. But it's curious about that hall door. You're sure you locked it?"

He looked at Gordon inquiringly. "I thought I was sure," said Gordon. "But perhaps I was mistaken. It seems unlikely that the—gun man would try to escape through the house, doesn't it?"

"Yes," said Tyler. "Who else lives on this floor?"

"Only Johnson," said Gordon. "You trust him?" Tyler asked. "Absolutely," said Gordon. "He's been with me for years."

"Who else has access to that door from the inside?" pursued Tyler.

David Gordon gave a little snort of impatience. "This line is a waste of time," he snapped. "The man obviously got in by the window."

"I dare say," said Tyler calmly. "But some one might have come in by that door. I merely asked who has access to it?"

David shrugged resignedly. "I, for one," he said. "Only my immediate family," the elder Gordon interposed. "All the other servants, the guards, the entire staff of the estate, have quarters in the outbuildings. None of them can even get into the house after it is closed for the night."

"What quarters are used by your family?" Tyler asked.

As if exasperated, David Gordon threw up his hands, and walked to the window, out of which he gazed with an elaborate show of unconcern. Nat stole a curious glance at his broad back, then looked at Ruth. Those disquieting sightless eyes were fixed on the elder Gordon. She seemed to be paying little attention to his actual words. It was as if, rather, she was trying to probe into his soul.

"They all occupy separate apartments on the second floor," said Gordon. "That is, the floor directly below this. My daughter Helene is just below this apartment. Doris has the apartment adjoining, toward the front of the house. My wife occupies the one just beyond that of Doris."

All three of these apartments open off that balcony," Tyler asked.

"Yes," said Gordon. "And my son's quarters are in the front of the house, opposite those of my wife. I—since I've been ill—that's been for several months—my wife and I have had separate apartments."

David Gordon turned suddenly. "What earthly difference does it make where we all sleep?" he demanded. "A thug shot at my father from the window. That's that—and we seem to be losing sight of it."

"It just puzzles me that no one saw this thug, that's all," said Tyler quietly. "To gain the ledge, he had to get on that balcony, off of which three apartments open. Then, after the shot, he would have to drop to the balcony again."

"That's so," said David. "By George, maybe he did escape through the house, after all!"

"At any rate, he escaped," said Gordon. "Somehow, heaven knows how, he managed to slip in past my guards and then to slip out again."

"These guards," Tyler said. "You can trust them?"

"Beyond a doubt," said Gordon promptly. "They are hand-picked men, all furnished by the agency with which I have done business for years, the same people who provide guards for my banks."

"Perhaps one or more of them was bribed," suggested Nat.

"No, no," said Gordon. "That's impossible. Believe me, he doesn't work like that."

"He?" said Nat quickly. "I—I mean whoever is behind this," said Gordon. "I—I—"

"Mr. Gordon," Tyler interrupted shaply, "can you tell us who is behind this?"

"I?" Gordon said. "My dear fellow—"

"Lord, man, if we knew—"

David Gordon put in. Tyler disregarded the younger man, bent a searching look upon the father.

"You have no enemies?" he asked.

"There—there are cranks, of course," Gordon said. "Fanatics who might hate a man of my—in my situation. In fact, I must tell you, gentlemen, there was a previous attempt to kill me."

Nat and Tyler gave short exclamations of surprise.

"So?" said Tyler. "This was before our first warning?"

"Yes," said Gordon. "Several months ago. It—it was kept out of the papers. I—I don't want publicity. Even my family, with the exception of Dave, does not know about it. But a bomb—a time bomb was found in my car. It was sheer luck. The car stalled, and my chauffeur had to get out some tools. He found the bomb in the tool-trunk."

"Did you notify the police?" asked Tyler.

"No," said Gordon. "That would have meant publicity. We can't afford that kind of notoriety. The banks are under enough strain as it is. People would be—well—nervous, if a thing like that about a man in my situation got out. My chauffeur was very cool about it. He'd been in the army, and knew something about explosives. He doused the thing in a bucket of water, and then removed the mechanism. It was a devilish-looking contrivance. If he hadn't found it—I'd have been blown to bits."

"It's like those cowardly murderers to strike like that!" he said passionately. "We've never rest till we've destroyed them all!"

Nat and Tyler looked at him keenly. "Then you have some idea?" said Tyler quietly.

"I only know that crooks and gangsters hate and fear my father," he said hotly. "You see, he's behind a concentrated campaign to break their filthy hold on this country. He's spent a lot of money doing it. And it's only the beginning. We're going to smoke those rats out if it takes every dollar we've got!"

"Ah," said Tyler softly. "And they—the underworld knows about this campaign?"

"They must know about it," said David.

"It's supposed to be a secret," Gordon interposed. "And what Dave's told you is confidential, of course. But somehow, these—these criminals have found out my connection with this organization. That's the only explanation."

"That's why they want to kill him," David broke in again. "They are afraid he'll wipe them out."

"That may explain the bomb," Tyler said.

"May?" said David. "Of course it explains it! And last night's attempt too. These fellows are fighting for their crooked lives. They'll stop at nothing."

"I see," said Tyler. "And what do you want us to do?"

"We thought—perhaps your daughter—could help us," said Paul Gordon hesitantly.

"We're at your service," said Tyler. "We'd like to protect you, if we can, of course. But even more important to us, we may be able to carry on our experiment with Ruth's extraordinary powers, an experiment which may mean much to all mankind."

"There is no way that I can express my gratitude for what your daughter has already done," said Gordon. "She saved my life last night. And as far as I'm concerned, she proved her powers. I hesitate to ask it—but I have a suggestion. It will involve a great deal of trouble for you. Perhaps even danger. If it were for myself alone—"

"What is it?" asked Tyler quietly. "Would you consider remaining here, on the estate, your son and daughter, for a time?" Gordon asked. "What I'm getting at is this: Should another attempt be made on my life, perhaps she can—well—foresee it. And being on the spot, bring about the apprehension of this—the assassin."

Tyler turned toward Ruth. She was sitting just as before, quietly listening. Her great eyes were closed. Now she opened them, as if sensing her father's inquiring look. "I'll be glad to stay," she said. "If you and Nat do too."

"That can be arranged," said Gordon eagerly. "You shall be my guests. There is a very comfortable and roomy cottage. It will accommodate you nicely. If you can see your way clear—"

"I think it's an excellent idea," said Nat quickly.

"Then we'll stay," said Tyler. "Splendid!" Gordon cried.

He swung Tyler's hand. Nat was watching David, who frowned slightly. But on catching Nat's eyes, he smiled suddenly and murmured: "Very kind of you. We appreciate this."

At Gordon's urgent insistence they agreed to return to town, get their things and come back to the estate that evening in time for dinner. Gordon promised to have the cottage put in order at once.

They were clear of the grounds and half a mile down the road before anyone spoke. Then Nat, turning to Tyler, said: "For a father and son, those fellows certainly don't look much alike."

"They do not," said Tyler. Ruth seemed surprised.

"Why, their voices are much alike," she said. "The same quality. It never occurred to me they were not father and son. Of course it's possible they aren't. One thing I am sure of—that man is withholding something from us. Something important."

"I believe you're right," said Tyler. "As for me, I'm still trying to figure out how a gunman could sneak into the armed camp, fire a shot which aroused the entire household, and then just—vanish."

Salem Book Club Members Discuss Next Year's Program

Salem Book club members, meeting at the public library Monday afternoon, heard the outline of their program for next year. The committee has arranged a most delightful and interesting program for the year on the general subject of "Evolution of Books in America."

Provision is made in each meeting's outline for extra features, including book reviews, current topics, debates on timely subjects, short plays, dinners, guest nights and joint meetings. Mrs. Irving Megraill, who read the year's plans, announced that the annual joint meeting with the Salem Music Study club and the Salem Travelers club, had been decided on tentatively for Jan. 18, 1937.

Plan Guest Night

Announcement was made also concerning the last meeting of this season, the annual guest night on May 18. The affair will open with a dinner at 6:30 p. m. at the Masonic temple, served by the members of the Eastern Star. Mrs. J. E. Bentley, head of the hospitality committee, requested that all members notify her if they plan to attend, and the number of guests they will bring, by May 14 or 15.

The program for the guest party will consist of sketches by Mrs. Betty Harrold of Columbus, Interpretive singer, who appears in authentic costumes according to the song she offers. The Leornians and the Book club will assemble together for the entertainment.

Mrs. George Votaw, president, thanked her committees and members of the club for the support and cooperation throughout the year.

The program topic was "Nature," and roll call response was "Observations in Nature."

William Baker, ornithologist, a teacher in the Junior High school, spoke on "Bird Songs." Mr. Baker informed members that the song of birds is their most outstanding characteristic. He said that most birds have some sort of song, although some may be only calls, whistles or notes. The turkey vulture, he pointed out, has no call or sound in the adult bird, but the young has.

How They Are Cared

He named true song birds and those who are not truly song birds, explaining that the construction of the throat muscles of a bird determine whether or not it is a songster. Some of the birds on the song bird list are not good singers, as the blue jay, crow, and cedar waxwings. Other birds which are not classed as songsters have songs, as the whip-poor-will and the bob white.

He described and imitated the woodcock's song and its habits in singing about dusk. He named several birds which use their wings, or tails, to make the sound which is their song, as the Wilson's snipe, which uses its tail, and the bittern. Song primarily, Mr. Baker pointed out, is a warning to other birds to keep away from the neighborhood and is used also to attract the attention of the female. Birds inherit songs and calls and they sing differently in different parts of the country. "The songs are acquired in the period of immaturity. The time to hear birds sing is in the spring, he said, and in the early morning.

Other numbers on the program were four papers on "Nature's Rhythms of Color," Mrs. J. S. Fronk; "The Industry of the Ant," Mrs. W. V. Anderson; "Footprints in the Snow," Mrs. Howard McDonald; "Weather Superstitions Based on Nature," Mrs. A. I. Getz.

Musical entertainment at the meeting consisted of a clarinet duet, "La Golondrina," played by Misses Jean Auld and Jean Kingsley, accompanied by Miss Mabel McCave.

Mother's Day Honored By O. E. S.

Members of Salem chapter No. 334, Order of Eastern Star, paid tribute to mothers last evening at the conclusion of the lodge session. Officers of the chapter, headed by Mrs. E. M. Jenkins of Winona, worthy matron, were in charge of the memorial ceremonies. Selections by the choir were heard, closing with a solo by Mrs. Glenn Harding. Baskets of red and white roses were used in the ceremonies, each member receiving a red or white rose. A lunch was served by the executive committee, in charge of Mrs. W. L. Fultz.

The chapter members are making plans to attend the annual inspection of the Lisbon, Hanoverton and Louisville chapters. Pleasant Valley chapter at Hanoverton will have its inspection tonight, opening with a dinner at 6:30 p. m. The chapter at Lisbon will be inspected Wednesday evening. The dinner will be served at 6 at the lodge home. Inspection of the Louisville lodge is scheduled for Friday night. The dinner, at 6 p. m., will be served in the Reformed church there.

Honor Newlyweds At Shower

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Caulfield, whose marriage was an event of April 16, were honored recently at a shower at the Saxon hall. The couple received many beautiful gifts and the evening was spent informally. Mrs. Caulfield's mother, Mrs. Matthew Melitichka, served a lunch to the 250 guests present. Mrs. Caulfield was the former Miss Elizabeth Melitichka.

Bridge Players Plan Session

Duplicate bridge players will assemble Thursday evening at the Memorial building for another session of play.

Marriage License

Today's Pattern

Anne Adams
YOUNGSTER'S PANTIE FROCK
Pattern 2637

It's time to check up on Little Sister's wardrobe, too, so Anne Adams has provided a frock that will be the answer to a very young maiden's prayer. The princely lines of this frock are equally fetching with, or without the belt, and the full, short skirt allows plenty of room for active young legs. The perky puff sleeves are as comfy to wear as they are easy to make and the round, trim collar lends a decidedly "grown up" touch. She'll love it in the checked gingham illustrated or choose a gayly printed percale or broadcloth—they are easy to tub and wear very well. Nice in dotted swiss, dimity or organdy for parties.

Pattern 2637 is available in sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 6 takes 2½ yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

Send fifteen cents (15c) in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly name, address and style number. Be sure to state size.

Order our new Anne Adams pattern book and learn how easily you can make a smart summer wardrobe that's just your style! The latest frocks, suits, blouses, beach and vacation clothes; bridal outfits. Lovely clothes for children, too. Smart styles for stouts. And a full picture-story of summer fabrics and accessories. Price of book 15 cents. Book and a pattern together, 25 cents.

Address orders to Salem News Pattern department, 243 West 17th st., New York, N. Y.

"Ethiopia Is Italian," Mussolini Announces To Countrymen
BY ANDRUE BERDING
(Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)

ROME, May 5.—Premier Mussolini declared tonight "the war is over" and "Ethiopia is Italian."

He made his declaration to half the population of Italy assembled through the nation in an Adunata—an official mobilization of the public.

The populace was assembled in celebration of the fall of Addis Ababa to Italian troops under the commands of Marshal Pietro Badoglio.

Il Duce spoke from a blue bannered balcony in the Piazza Venezia while thousands of subjects gathered in the piazza below him.

Today

A Review of the Day's News

By Arthur Brisbane
Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.
LOS ANGELES.

EVERY DAY when the weather is good, which means practically every day here, a little red and white biplane rises from a local airport, does "stunts," including the "snap-roll" with ease and precision comes down.

The person getting out of the cockpit is no great big fierce American "he-man" left over from the war. That pilot is a small 105-pound Chinese girl, answering to the name of Katherine Sui Fun Cheung.

A little while ago Miss Cheung could not fly, or even speak English. Now she does both as well as anybody, with nearly one thousand flying hours to her credit.

CHINA HAS four hundred million human beings, all but the oldest and youngest, able and willing to learn to fly, with skill to manufacture planes and, perhaps, improve on ours. Those gentlemen invented the compass, gunpowder, astronomical instruments and other contraptions, when our folks were cannibals.

Furthermore, China's people have no objection to dying, for any cause that interests them.

If Russia or Japan should train and lead a few millions of Chinese, or, more likely, if the ancient intelligence of China should develop aggressive military leadership of its own and start westward, by air, that could mean something for future history.

THE EMPEROR Haile Selassie, now more or less a plain citizen, having taken refuge on French territory, lived over again in a small way the experience of the former Kaiser at the end of the big war.

Selassie's men thought the war had lasted long enough, stopping fighting. Mussolini's men and turned to fight white men in general.

Fortunately the British, who look ahead, had built up a place of refuge, with plenty of barbed wire entanglements, reliable six-foot fighting men from India, and equally reliable machine guns.

Many of the whites, including the American ministers, left in Addis Ababa, took refuge inside the British barbed wire entanglements. That prevented what might have been a complete massacre of the whites.

HAILE SELASSIE, who has been in London, visiting the late King George and learning about diplomacy, seems to have looked into the future.

Without waiting for the inevitable, he is said to have shipped much gold, a substantial fortune, to be kept for him in France. He is assured that he will be welcome there when he arrives to change that gold into francs and spend it.

WHEN THE war was young, nobody dreaming that it was to be only a brief expedition between rainy seasons, solemn Englishmen in Parliament warned each other and the world that it would be dangerous for the white race if Mussolini should win.

All the blacks everywhere, they said would rise and all the browns, no white man's life would be safe in Africa and other "colored" regions.

Just why blacks and the browns should submit meekly to conquest by the English and murder everybody in case Mussolini won was not explained.

MUSSOLINI has won and soon the Ethiopians, who recognize efficient fighting, will be glad of it. Mussolini will show the moving pictures, as real as possible, of Haile Selassie and his family enjoying themselves in Paris or some other fine city, spending gold taken from Ethiopia.

They will notice his pointed chin and beard, his finely cut Arabic features, as unlike the Ethiopians as they are unlike the fair Caucasians.

Mussolini will build roads in Ethiopia to defy tropical storms, give regular jobs and food to the natives, supply schools for their children. Slavery and torture will cease and Ethiopia will decide to accept the better Italian government and forget Haile Selassie and his alleged ancestors, King Solomon and the Queen of Sheba.

THE ETHIOPIANS fought bravely, they had no chance against machine guns, tanks and airplanes; there is no disgrace in their defeat.

As soon as they have proved their loyalty to Mussolini he will supply them with modern weapons, teach them to fly and use them, well drilled in Italian military undertakings, calling for men willing to be killed.

Carl Hubbell Pitches 4-Hit Ball But New York Batsmen Let Him Down As Reds Win

In Last 26 Innings Hubbell Has Been On Mound, Giants Have Given Only One Run to Play With; Extra Base Blow Spells Defeat Yesterday

The New York Giants batsmen should hang their heads when Carl Hubbell comes along for they have been letting him down in shameful fashion.

In the last 26 innings the ace finger has worked on the mound, the Giants have given him exactly one run to play with. That isn't much of a lead in any ball game, even behind Hubbell, who won 23 while losing 12 last year.

Hubbell pitched four-hit ball yesterday but the Giants failed to score a single run and went down 1-0 before the Cincinnati Reds. In his previous start, Hubbell went 17 innings against the Cardinals but lost 2-1 when his mates failed to fathom the slants of Leroy Parmelee. Hubbell won his first two games of the season.

Only one of the four hits against Hubbell was an extra base blow but it subsequently spelled defeat. Kiki Cuyler opened the ninth inning with a triple. Sammy Byrd hoisted a fly to Mel Ott in right field and Cuyler raced home with the winning run, sliding into Gus Mancuso to beat Ott's throw to the plate.

Get Eight Hits
The Giants managed to collect eight hits off Elbert Stine, 23-year-old rookie but it was the old story of failing to hit with a run in sight. Stine did not issue a single pass.

Rain played havoc with the schedule.
Ray Benge, the leading pitcher of the National League, registered his fourth straight win as the Boston Bees defeated the St. Louis Cardinals 7-6 to halt the latter's winning streak at six games. The Cleveland Indians took their second straight victory from the Senators 6-3.

Although Benge was credited with the victory, he was retired in the Cardinal half of the seventh after he had walked two and Leo Durocher had singled to fill the bags. The Cards scored only one run, however, as Frankie Frisch hit into a double play.

Appleton Pounded
Pete Appleton, former Indian hurler, was belted for 13 hits by his old pals. He held the Tribe scoreless for five innings but Cleveland scored in every inning after that. Appleton had three straight victories to his credit before the encounter.

The Indians, already hard-hit by the illness of Bruce Campbell which was expected to terminate his career, received another blow in the game when Earl Averill pulled a leg muscle.

As the Reds battled on the ball field, there was turmoil behind the scenes. General Manager Larry S. MacPhail inferred that Paul Derringer, the Reds' ace finger, might be dropped from the active list because he plays "like he's supposed to." Derringer was suspended without pay when he failed to slide home in Sunday's game. Derringer won 22 games last year but he has failed to show his customary form this season.

WESLEYAN TOPS IN OHIO TRACK

Looms as Winner of Buckeye Conference Title This Season

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS, May 5.—Ohio Wesleyan loomed as "tops" in the Buckeye conference track and field sphere today, and seemed destined to break the eight-year grip which Ohio university and Miami have held on the thin-clad laurels.

The Battling Bishops, with dual victories over both the Bobcats and Redskins, appear on their way back to the heights they enjoyed a decade ago when the Buckeye was an infant loop.

Coach George Gauthier, boasting only a few individual stars but blessed with all-around strength, built a team this year which defeated Ohio university, defending champion, 69½ to 61½, and then romped over Miami 72 1-3 to 58 2-3.

Stronger Hurdles
The Bishops are strong in the hurdles, broad and high jumps, and are good for seconds and thirds in a host of other events. Their lone weakness is in the distance runs.

Miami has been without the services of Amdein Oliver, Negro hurdler, and Pete Jones, ace javelin thrower. Ohio university has Paul Hallick, Olympic weight-tossing prospect, but has lost Elden Armbrust and Jim Gilmore, who scored 27 points between them in the Buckeye meet in 1935.

Cincinnati, in losing to Ohio university 90 to 37, faded from title consideration. Dayton and Marshall, remaining Buckeye teams, are expected to enter few, if any, men in the league meeting at Oxford, May 22 and 23.

COACH REFUSED MINISTER'S JOB

Lynn Waldorf chose Football Instead, Father Says In Interview

COLUMBUS, May 5.—Just the father of four football players' took time out today from the quadrennial Methodist conference to predict young Lynn Waldorf would be a greater success as a football coach than he would have been as a Methodist preacher, his original goal.

Bishop E. L. Waldorf of Chicago, father of the Northwestern university grid coach, talked as well and as readily on football as religion and disclosed that Lynn planned to enter the ministry after his all-American rating at Syracuse.

But the coach coaching instead because, Bishop Waldorf said, "If he had been a poor preacher, no one would hear of him, and if he had been good, everyone would say that his father helped him."

The day Northwestern beat Notre Dame last season was a jubilee for the Waldorf family. McKendry college, coached by Lynn's brother Paul, won a game. So did a high school team on which another brother, Robert, played. Besides, it was Mrs. Waldorf's birthday.

But Bishop Waldorf scolded Lynn after the game. "Lynn, you ought to be ashamed of yourself," he said. "You didn't abide by the golden rule."

"Well, Dad," Lynn replied, "it was divine providence. It just had to happen."

Paul Waldorf now coaches at Fort Hays college in Kansas. John Waldorf quit Nebraska Wesleyan to manage a large farm. Robert will enroll next fall in the University of Missouri. A daughter, Ethel Margaret is the wife of a Methodist clergyman in Maywood, Ill.

Results of Tourney Five-Man Event

Official results of the five-man event of the city-handicap tenpin tournament and leaders in the all-events race were announced today by John Carpenter, secretary of the city bowling association.

The final tabulation failed to change the unofficial standings announced when the five-man competition closed last week and left the Knights of Columbus in first place with the Salem News and the Orphans also in the money.

Bob Tubbs of the K. of C.'s, with a total of 1,279 pins, holds the temporary lead in the all-events class. Pressing Tubbs for the top position is Charles Wernet of the City Hall five with a total of 1,233, while close behind Wernet is Harry Calladine of the Orphans with 1,232.

MARYLAND VOTE GIVES FDR LEAD

Assures Roosevelt of 16 Votes In Democratic Convention

(By Associated Press)

Returns from the Maryland presidential primary gave President Roosevelt a margin of approximately 5½ to 1 today over Col. Henry Breckinridge, foe of the new deal, and assured the chief executive of the state's 16 votes in the Democratic national convention.

Unofficial returns from 1,347 of 1,434 precincts gave: Roosevelt 95,550; Breckinridge 17,377.

As the count of ballots cast in Maryland yesterday was being completed, primary elections were being held today in California and South Dakota.

Pledged To London

In the Republican party in the coast state there is a contest between an unstructured slate of candidates for delegates and a slate pledged to Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas.

On the Democratic side voters had a choice among a slate picked by President Roosevelt, Upton Sinclair's group which was formed by epic Democrats, and Representative McGroarty's group. Sinclair and McGroarty have said they would support the president on the second ballot at the Philadelphia Democratic convention.

Sinclair seeks a production-for-use plank in the party platform, while McGroarty's group wants a Townsend pension plank.

In the South Dakota primary, interest centered in the contest between a slate pledged to Senator Borah of Idaho, and an unstructured slate which is claimed by supporters of Governor Landon. The state will send eight delegates to the national convention.

President Roosevelt is unopposed in the Democratic primary in South Dakota.

Premier's Cabinet Assembles To Plan Defense of France

PARIS, May 5.—Premier Albert Sarraut's coalition cabinet assembled today to plan a defense for the franc today with the ministers reported in disagreement and perturbed by a possibility of devaluation.

Informed sources said the leftist "people's front," which won a majority in the new chamber of deputies, would face serious problems after the chamber meets June 1 and looked upon depreciation of the franc now as a solution to many difficulties.

Although all parties opposed devaluation in the election campaign, many political leaders conceded privately that this action might be necessary for France's economy recovery.

One high official said the leftists would "welcome" devaluation by the Sarraut cabinet now as the new government would escape responsibility for losses incurred by investors and would receive the credit for anticipated economic benefits.

Theater Attractions

Lester Mathews, Frances Farmer and George Ernest, the three stars of "Too Many Parents," showing at the State tonight and tomorrow.

A Boris Karloff mystery, "The Walking Dead," will be shown on a double bill which includes a drama on divorce, entitled "Too Many Parents," at the State theater tonight and tomorrow.

The new Karloff picture uses the theory of bringing an electrocuted man back to life. The story should be interesting as a variation of the "Lindbergh heart" is used to keep alive the "walking dead" as Karloff is called in the horror picture.

Kept Alive By Machinery

A complicated series of glass tubing, run by motor to resemble action of the human heart, is used to keep tissue and organs alive indefinitely. The studio, from blue prints of the Lindbergh heart, built a model for use in the picture. Also used is a variation of the "feeder-table" by which Dr. Robert Cornish of Berkeley, Calif., brought several dogs back to life.

In the story, Karloff is electrocuted for a crime he did not commit. When he is proven innocent, after he is dead, scientists step in and bring him back to life. This man walks among men, in a half daze, with an unnatural power to recognize the members of a band of crooks who were responsible for his being electrocuted.

Ricardo Cortez plays the leader of the crooks, as a racketeer lawyer, Barton MacLane is seen in the role of a big political boss of the city. Marguerite Churchill and Warren Hull supply the love interest in the film.

"Too Many Parents," the second feature, tells a story of children of divorced parents.

Four boys of divorced families are placed in a military school. These boys become fast friends, and one of them, George Ernest the idol of the school. This boy particularly is not happy because his father neglects him. The niece of the commandant of the school, Frances Farmer, takes an interest in the lonely boy and finds romance for herself with the boy's father, played by Lester Mathews.

Woman Companion Of Karpis Taken To Unknown Place

NEW ORLEANS, May 5.—Ruth Robinson, the pretty woman in white who was taken into custody here last Friday with Alvin Karpis, the alleged St. Paul kidnaper, was spirited away from the federal building early today by Bureau of Investigation officers and taken to an undisclosed destination in an automobile.

Fred Hunter, her companion in the Karpis case who is an Ohio mail robbery suspect, was slipped out of the building by another group of federal agents.

Woman Had Aliases

Both had been questioned from Friday night until early this morning in the offices of David W. Magee, federal agent in charge of the Bureau of Investigation here.

J. Edgar Hoover, head of the Bureau of Identification who came to New Orleans and personally directed the raid on the Karpis apartment, said the woman was known as Ruth Robinson of Arkansas and that she had gone under other names.

Both prisoners have been housed in the federal offices continuously since the raid. It is not known whether any charges have been filed against them.

Magee and his men took Ruth out of the building in the early morning hours with a black typewriter cover over her head to shield her face from view.

The latest sound from the temporary prison quarters last night was the hysterical laughing of a woman, supposedly Ruth.

THE SAFE CONVENIENT Way to Pay Bills

Most people settle obligations by check in preference to cash because:

● checks prevent misunderstandings;

● they provide a record and receipt for each transaction;

● they enable the depositor to avoid the dangers of keeping a large sum of cash at home or of carrying it on his person;

● they save time and trouble.
